

Challenger students shine

TWELVE students from the Challenger Institute of Technology in Beaconsfield brought their individual talents together last week to create the Sounds of Spring concert.

The fundraising event is the product of eight weeks of work by the students, who organised the entire event from planning to arranging the musical acts to promoting the concert.

Events on the day included musical performances by the Diploma of Music students and an interpretive Australian Sign Language performance of a poem.

Challenger Institute of Technology General Education for Adults lecturer Ellen Kenny said she hoped the event would enhance the students' skills and confidence.

"The project gave the students the chance to develop skills in project management and increase their confidence in performing in front of an audience," she said.

Student Janette Campbell and interpreter Fiona Perry.

Picture: Martin Kennealey

www.communitypix.com.au d36685f